Discussion Held On Faith And Reality

Students Hear Rev. Palmer
And Miss Macdonald

Morris Hall, in the Presbyterian College was the scene of a student reception on Monday from 4 to 6 P.M. under the auspices of the Provincial Board of the Women's Missionary Society. The speakers were Rev. F. Noel Palmer, B.A., B.D., General Secretary of the Inter-Varsity Christian Fellowship of Canada, and Miss Isabel Macdonald, M.A., Deputation Secretary of the Scripture Union.

Theology Fortunate

Mr. Palmer spoke on the theme, "The Venture of Faith." He pointed out the privilege given to theological students in giving themselves to the noble task which is past generations have produced some of the world's greatest thinkers, viz., interpreting their universe in the light of Christian faith.

Evidence of Christ Crucified

Claiming that Christian faith assumes God and accepts Christ, Mr. Palmer stressed, as one of three lines of objective evidence, the incarnation of Jesus Christ. "The personal experience of Christ," he stated "must be the really convincing evidence to any individual."

Miss Macdonald effectively followed with a brief appeal, for reality, inviting a new devotion to the reading of the Bible. Dr. Macdonald closed the gathering with warm thanks to the speakers and to the hostesses of the day.

Police Victims Recovering

Reid, victim of the post on route last week, is reported as in a fairly satisfactory state, according to a hospital report last night. There is no actual fracture of the skull, and he should be out of hospital in about five weeks if no complications develop.

Schubert, who was last seriously injured, has gone home, and is reported to be satisfactorily recovering from his involuntary convulsion with the various kinds of leg and other.

Works of Sinclair Lewis Described

Nobel Prize Winner Depicts
American Town Life

WORK REALISTIC

Werry President of English Literature Society For Coming Year

Outlining the life and works of Sinclair Lewis, Nobel Prize Winner, Professor Latham of the English Department, addressed a meeting of the English Literature Society in the Arts Building on Monday. This was the last session of the group for the year, and the election of officers took place.

Sinclair Lewis was born in a small mid-western town in the United States, consequently his descriptions of the small town in his works are both authentic and realistic. His father was a doctor, which perhaps explains the artistic manner with which Lewis depicts the doctor in "Main Street" and in "Arrowsmith."

Plagues Public

After leaving Yale, Lewis confined himself with newspaper work and wrote several novels, which were mainly designed to please the public. With this Lewis was highly successful, in that he obtained a wide circulation for his works.

Meanwhile, Lewis saw much with which he was dissatisfied. Above all he was disappointed with the hypocrisy that prevailed everywhere at the time. As a result he published his book, "Main Street," a description of small town life, in which a young married woman, born and brought up in the city tries to adapt herself to the small town environment, and the consequent result is her own and her husband's.

Shows Materialism

In "Main Street," as well as in "Babbalanza" and "Arrowsmith," Sinclair Lewis does not attempt to write a novel but does try to show the hypocrisy that results from materialism. While "Elmer Gantry" appears to be an overdone figure, his description by the author is quite sincere and unbiased.

In his criticism and comparison, Dr. Latham stated that Canada now needs a man who, like Lewis, would undertake to show us the materialism that now prevails.

The election of officers, that followed after the meeting were as follows: Wilfred Werry, President; Richmond and Currie, Vice-Presidents; and McCurdy, Secretary.

A combined team of M.C.B.'s and militia units took the Jacks on Tuesday, with a total of 240 and 240, the militia and militia having 220 and 220 respectively.

Present Coupon System Is Upheld At Second Sitting

Students' Society Meets
Again To Discuss New Amendment

CHANGE NOT PRACTICAL

Clay And Gray Were Movers
Of Measure For Reform
Of Constitution

At the second session of the semi-annual meeting of the Students' Society yesterday afternoon, the motion proposing an amendment to the present system of student coupons for athletic events was thoroughly defeated.

The motion which was proposed by C. C. Clay and seconded by J. D. Gray appeared in full in these columns some time ago. Its principal features were the demand for better seating accommodation at the hockey and football games for the students.

Hotly Contested

The argument which was so hotly contested at the session last Monday, was brought up again having lost none of its strength in the interval. Many arguments were brought up both for and against the present system, but the arguments in favor were stronger than those against and upon being put to the question, the motion was defeated by a considerable majority.

Athletic Board Criticized

As was to be expected, the Athletic Board came in for a great deal of criticism, but they also have justified themselves in the eyes of the Students' Society.

Report Read

The meeting was presented with a very comprehensive report of the whole situation by G. B. Craig, who stressed the situation as it had existed before the advent of the present coupon system, and pointed out that all the amendments which the movers proposed had already been tried and found inefficient. The idea was good in theory but poor in practice, he said, and urged that while the meeting was free to decide either way, investigation had shown that the present system was generally speaking the most successful yet attempted.

Philosophers Argue Topic of Free Will

Opinions Expressed Regarding
Old-Age Problem

"Free Will and Determination" was the subject under discussion at the meeting of the Philosophical Society on Monday night at the Strathcona Hall. The meeting, taking the form of a symposium, brought forward many opinions concerning this problem which has vexed philosophers for centuries.

Among the speakers discussed, was that of the will being free, and that the will was either the choosing of the individual or the influence of the interests themselves. Heredity and environment were also brought forward as determining agencies. The will is an expression of character and manifests itself in the alternatives of each one of us, depending on our varying interests.

Democracy Urges Equality, Progress, Peace, And Liberty

Professor Adams Delivered
Lecture in Moyse
Hall

SOCIALISM SPREADS

Mandates Are Not Only
Trustships But Also Partnerships

"The foundation of modern democracy is the spiritual force urging equality, brotherhood, progress, peace, fraternity, and liberty," said Professor Adams, in the address which he delivered today, in Moyse Hall. "The spread of Democracy — Trustship, and Partnership" is the fourth of a series of lectures, being given every Tuesday afternoon, in Moyse Hall.

As an introduction to his subject, Professor Adams defined "democracy." Democracy means the rule of the people; therefore we may regard it as a form of government. It means local government as well as central government, for it is an intimate association of the people with the government.

Democracy Means Liberty

Democracy is also a way of living. Individual democracy means that a person has the opportunity and the right to a "say" in the choice of his occupation, and the condition of that occupation, and has also some part in affecting the rules of the industry in which he works. It is an urge to secure the right to work, a fair wage, and some influence over the distribution as well as the production. Social democracy means an equality of opportunity, a right to develop one's faculties, and the right to pass from one class of society to another; it is a provision to insure that all have the means of a decent life, and that the weak and poor are provided for.

Democracy Is Old Idea

"Democracy is not new. It existed far back in history," said the speaker. The most rapid development of democracy has taken place in the twentieth century, and its spread has been most significant in the third decade of the twentieth century. A study of the form of the constitution has (Continued on Page Three)

Orchestra in Last Recital on Sunday

Two Symphonies And Other
Numbers Will Be Heard

Bringing to a close their first season of activity, the Montreal Orchestra will give their last concert on Sunday afternoon at three o'clock in His Majesty's Theatre. Requests by the public for numbers to be played at this concert were called for, and the response has been very large. As a result, a most unusual program will be given, which will include two full symphonies, and three other numbers, that have already been heard at their concerts, and which have proved popular.

Mozart's Overture to his opera "Figaro" will open the program, to be followed by the Brahms Symphony No. 1 in C minor. Third comes St. Paul's Suite for Strings by Holst, while the Symphony in D minor by Cesar Franck, and Shepherd's Hey by Grainger complete it.

Founded November Last

The orchestra was founded in November last year. Mr. Douglas Clarke was elected conductor, and since then twenty four concerts have been given. The group has been engaged to give a series of concerts over the radio, during the Canadian Pacific Fireside Symphony Hour on Saturday afternoons, and strong hopes are held for its continuation next year.

Price Reductions

Students are urged to take advantage of the twenty-five cent tickets, which are being sold by Bill Gentlemen in the Arts Building. They are for seats in the first six rows of the orchestra, and have in the past been much in demand, all the good ones being sold early in the week.

Class Histories Wanted

The Convocation Issue of the McGill Daily will be published on April 25th. All historians of graduating classes are requested to give their histories to one of the Editors, or leave them at the Tuck Shop addressed to the Daily, before April 23rd. Women Students Vote Unanimously For Amalgamation

Advocate Changes in Distribution of Athletic Fees

CHANGES INVOLVED

Proposed Union Will Give
Representation to All
Women Students

Yesterday afternoon the McGill Women Students' Society resolved by a unanimous vote, to amalgamate with the Men's Student Society. Preceding the discussion and consequent decision, the changes of necessity involved in the union, were enumerated by the president, Ruth Dew. Changes involved:

These changes included: 1. A difference in the apportionment of the eleven dollars in fees paid by the women students.

2. The subsidization by the R.V.C. Undergraduate Society of the R.V.C. Music Club, the Societe Francaise, the S.C.A. of R.V.C., and R.V.C. Athletics.

3. The financial support of the Delta Sigma society, by the new council.

4. The formation of a Women's Union, its committee to be composed of the President of the Women's Union, the President of the Women's Union, the President of the Delta Sigma Society, and the President of the M.W.S.S. Athletic Association.

This latter association would be composed of the two societies, the R.V.C.A. and the M.S.P.E.A., and would do away with considerable overlapping, complication, and added expense.

Distribution of Fee

The president explained that the amount paid by the women at the present time was eleven dollars not ten. The extra dollar, through various routes, has been absorbed by the University funds. It was also pointed out that of the five dollars which the women pay to the Athletic Board, three dollars is ascribed to Athletic tickets. Since two dollars covers all the amount of the women's coupons, the other dollar (Continued on Page Three)

Modern Design to Feature Annual '31

Sets President in Special Sections And Contributions

"OM MCGILL 1931" will contain many features this year which have never been run before. In the first place the book is designed on modernistic lines, and this form is becoming used from cover to cover. The frontispiece is by the well-known artist, Edwin Holgate, and each will be signed and numbered by the artist. The introductory pages to the various sections are being done in the new patented water colour process, which gives a very novel effect to this department of the book.

Many Notables Contribute

Stephen Leacock has contributed two features; there are articles by Sir Andrew MacPhail, Dean P. E. Corbett, Professor T. W. L. MacDermott; there is a special section for Janitors; and Viscount Willingdon has sent a message in his own handwriting.

Besides these there are many other things of note, among them being the greatly increased College Life section, individual biographies for M.S.P.E., and the use throughout of the modernistic Kabel type.

The sale of Annuals is progressing very favourably, but still its are urged to sign with their class representative at the earliest possible time.

now changed to an interest in the effects of government.

Mandates Effective

This democratic idea has affected the relations between the advanced and the backward states of the world. There is a desire to treat the individual not as a means but as an end. The greatest expression of these ideas is to be found in the League of Nations, and the mandates.

These mandates are not only a trusteeship, but a partnership, a movement toward the equality of the states. They attempt first, the moral and material development of the mandatory, second, the care and interests of humanity, and third, the welfare of the immigrant races. The object of democracy is to develop the material, educational, and political welfare, and to develop self-government.

A motion was adopted that the men's Athletic Board be asked to accept two dollars instead of three, and that the remaining dollar be used by the women's Athletic Board. One of the reasons for the formation of a women's Union is that it will give representation on the council to members of the faculty of Medicine, Library School, and School of Graduate Nurses who would otherwise have no representation on the Council.

SCORE 15 TO 1

It looks as though Arts, last year's baseball champs will again take the title. Yesterday they won their fifth straight game at the expense of Engineering. The final score was 15 to 1. Great pitching by Cohen and excellent support coupled with some heavy hitting was the cause of the Arts victory.

In the five innings played yesterday, Arts made three double-plays. This is believed to be a record for interfaculty baseball, where a double-play is a rarity. The first inning batting spree by Arts was enough to win the game.

Colour Features
Old McGill 1931

For the first time in the history of the "Annual" the introductory pages to the various sections will be done in colour. However this statement does not tell the whole story, since the Editorial Board has just completed arrangements whereby these drawings will be done in water colours. This is a very new, patented process, and gives an effective and pleasing appearance. Besides the fact that this will help materially toward brightening-up the general appearance of the book, the Board feels it is offering the students some of the very latest ideas in the art of printing and bookmaking.

This idea, in conjunction with the rest of the modernistic scheme of "Old McGill 1931" will ensure those who sign for copies, that they are getting something, which, beside being a record of activities at the University during the present session, is also a book embodying the modern trend in publication.

Few students realise the changes which have taken place in and about the University in the past half-century. If one were seeking for such, he would go in all probability, to some one of the older alumni. The Editors of Annual considered doing this, but felt that such a story would not have the interest which one would have if written by someone who is not a graduate. The Calmen who have their stand just outside the University gates offered a solution, and accordingly one of these who has lived in Montreal for the past fifty years was asked to do this. His story of "Old McGill" will appear and should constitute one of the most interesting features of this or any Annual.

Striking designs for the various pages will be one of the big features this year, the cover is entirely new; there will be individual pictures of M.

S.P.E., the Clubs and Executives section has been rearranged; the front-piece has been done by the well-known Montreal artist—Edwin Holgate, and each will be signed and numbered by the artist; the College Life Section, containing many pictures which the participants would gladly suppress, has been more than doubled in size; there are two articles by Stephen Leacock in his most humorous style; an article by Dean Corbett; one by Professor T. W. L. McDermott; Sir Andrew MacPhail has written on "State Medicine" dealing with the present day status of the Medical student; Viscount Willingdon, recently retired Governor-General of Canada has sent a message in his own handwriting; excellent caricatures of leading Campus figures have been done by Ivan R. Glasco, a former student and contributor to many previous Annuals; McGill's "Old Faithfuls", the Janitorial staff, will have a special section devoted to themselves; individual pictures of the Senior Rugby team will appear; and the type used is the striking modernistic Kabel, designed for easy reading in combination with novel black and white effects.

It is expected that the volume will be available to students by the scheduled time, since most of the work has already gone to press, so it is urged that all those intending to get a copy, sign immediately with their class representative or with the Janitor in the various Faculty Buildings.

MAKE it a weekly event in their lives — and yours. Arrange a certain day and hour each week to call the folks at home, the call to be charged to the home telephone.

Each call will take little of your time and it will mean more to mother and dad than a score of letters.

Look in the telephone book for information about rates and service to your home town. You will find the charges surprisingly low.

and the new BIRKDALE
"SPECIFIED" SUITS
are here

Speaking of Easter—Men's Suits come into the picture—that is, the new Birkdale "Specified" Suits.

They are the finest tailored suits ready-to-wear you ever set eyes on.

"Specified" means a great deal. There are over thirty specifications in their making.

Many of these specifications call for custom-made traditions—for example, all the pockets are "stayed" with Irish linen—so are "the fronts" that give line to the coat.

The collar sits perfectly, being hand-sewn top and bottom.

The shoulders are carefully moulded by hand, and other details of importance have been given careful, expert attention.

Finally—no matter what your size, you'll be fitted with a "specified"—and pleased—the materials are the latest from the best mills in the "Old Country"—and the price is amazingly nominal for such quality.
